I. INTRODUCTION

Now before the Court is Defendants Michael Chang and Roxanne Chang's (collectively, the "Changs") Motion to Dismiss Great American Insurance Company and Great American Insurance Company of New York's (collectively, "Great American") First Amended Complaint ("FAC") pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6).¹ ECF No. 19 ("MTD"). Great American filed an opposition to the Motion, ¹ The Changs also ostensibly move under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1). MTD at 1-2. Though Rule 12(b)(1) pertains to subject-matter jurisdiction, the Changs do not mention the issue once in their moving papers. The Court finds that the exercise of subject-matter jurisdiction is appropriate here. There is complete diversity among the parties and the pleadings allege an amount in controversy well in excess of $75,000. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332.

1 but the Changs declined to file a reply. ECF No. 25 ("Opp'n").
2 Pursuant to Civil Local Rule 7-1(b), the Court finds this matter 3 appropriate for determination without oral argument. For the 4 reasons set forth herein, the Changs' Motion is DENIED.
5

6 II. BACKGROUND

7 This case involves an insurance coverage dispute arising from 8 an underlying lawsuit filed against the Changs entitled Bilal 9 Kartal v. Michael Chang, et al., Case No. CIV 458146, San Mateo 10 Superior Court, and related cross-actions (the "Kartal Action").
11 ECF No. 16 ("FAC") ¶ 11. The Kartal action concerns the alleged 12 contamination of a property owned by Michael Chang that is located 13 on Baldwin Avenue in San Mateo, California. Id. ¶¶ 4, 6. The 14 instant action also involves a related insurance dispute arising 15 from claims that Michael Chang asserted in a different litigation, 16 seeking to recover pollution and investigation costs from the 17 California Underground Storage Tank Fund. Id. ¶ 11.

18 The Changs tendered claims to Great American for insurance 19 benefits under two policies issued by Great American between 1977 20 and 1983 (the "Great American Policies"). Id. ¶ 20. Although 21 Great American is defending the Changs in the Kartal action under a 22 reservation of rights and has advanced other claimed amounts, also 23 under a reservation of rights, Great American alleges that it has 24 no duty to defend or indemnify the Changs. Id. ¶¶ 12-19.
25 Specifically, Great American alleges that the Changs' 26 representatives sought to manufacture a defense obligation under 27 the Great American Policies with respect to the Kartal Action by 28 arranging for others to sue Michael Chang. See, e.g., id. ¶ 55-81.

1 Great American filed the instant action against the Changs in 2 February 2012. ECF No. 1. The FAC asserts a number of claims for 3 declaratory relief as well as a claim for breach of the Great 4 American Policies' "Cooperation Clause" and "No Voluntary Payment 5 Clause." FAC ¶¶ 115-62. Great American seeks a declaration that 6 it has no duty to defend or indemnify the Changs with respect to 7 the Kartal Action or other pollution claims involving the Baldwin 8 Avenue property. Id. at 43-44 ("Prayer for Relief"). Great 9 American also seeks reimbursement of amounts paid in connection 10 with the Changs' claims. Id.

12 III. LEGAL STANDARD

13 A motion to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 14 12(b)(6) "tests the legal sufficiency of a claim." Navarro v.
15 Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001). "Dismissal can be based 16 on the lack of a cognizable legal theory or the absence of 17 sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory." 18 Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir.
19 1988). "When there are well-pleaded factual allegations, a court 20 should assume their veracity and then determine whether they 21 plausibly give rise to an entitlement to relief." Ashcroft v.
22 Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 664 (2009). However, "the tenet that a court 23 must accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint 24 is inapplicable to legal conclusions. Threadbare recitals of the 25 elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory 26 statements, do not suffice." Id. at 663. (citing Bell Atl. Corp.
27 v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007)). The allegations made in a 28 complaint must be both "sufficiently detailed to give fair notice

1 to the opposing party of the nature of the claim so that the party 2 may effectively defend against it" and "sufficiently plausible" 3 such that "it is not unfair to require the opposing party to be 4 subjected to the expense of discovery." Starr v. Baca, 633 F.3d 5 1191, 1204 (9th Cir. 2011).

7 IV. DISCUSSION

8 The Changs' Motion is not an exemplar of legal argument.
9 Though the Changs move under Rule 12(b)(6), much of their motion is 10 devoted to affirmative defenses and factual matters which are 11 inappropriate for resolution on a motion to dismiss for failure to 12 state a claim. Not only do the Changs improperly attempt to turn 13 the Court's attention from the FAC's allegations to purported 14 "facts" outside the pleadings, they do not support those "facts" 15 with any evidence.² The Court addresses these deficiencies in more 16 detail below.

17 ² The Changs' attorney, Gregg S. Garrison ("Garrison"), did file a 18 declaration in support of the Motion. ECF No. 19-2 ("Garrison 19 Decl."). However, the Garrison Declaration asserts absolutely no facts. Nor are there any documents attached to the declaration.
The full body of the Garrison Declaration is reproduced below:

20 I, Gregg S. Garrison, hereby declare under penalty of 21 perjury that:

22 1. I am an attorney duly licensed to practice law in the 23 State of California and this Federal Judicial District and I attorney for the moving parties herein.

24 2. The statements herein are true and correct to my own knowledge or I believe them to be true.

25 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the 26 State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

27 It is unclear whether something was accidentally left out of the 28 declaration or if Garrison merely intended to establish that he is a duly licensed attorney.

1 The Changs argue that this action should not be allowed to 2 proceed because it was filed with "malice" and for an "improper 3 purpose." MTD at 8. In support, the Changs cite to case law 4 dealing with affirmative claims for malicious prosecution. Id. at 5 8-9 (citing Zamos v. Stroud, 32 Cal. 4th 958, 87 P.3d 802 (Cal.
6 2004)). However, the Changs offer no authority suggesting that 7 "malicious prosecution" qualifies as an affirmative defense -- 8 rather than a cause of action -- under California law. Even if it 9 does qualify, a Rule 12(b)(6) motion is an inappropriate vehicle 10 for asserting, let alone proving, an affirmative defense. Further, 11 the Changs have offered absolutely no evidence of malice or any of 12 the other elements of a malicious prosecution claim. In sum, the 13 Court declines to grant a Rule 12(b)(6) motion based on a 14 counterclaim, masquerading as an affirmative defense, that has yet 15 to be pled or proved.³

16 Next, the Changs seek a summary determination that the facts 17 presented in the Kartal Action created a duty to defend and 18 indemnify under the Great American Policies. Id. at 9-12. For 19 example, the Changs ask the Court to find that the negligent act 20 giving rise to the Kartel Action took place sometime between 1981 21

22 To the extent that Garrison intends to declare that all of the 23 facts asserted in the Motion are true, the Court may not properly 24 consider his declaration on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion. Further, the 25 declaration lacks foundation and is too vague to be admissible.

26 ³ The Changs raise what seems to be another affirmative defense or 27 crossclaim later in their motion, arguing that "Great American 28 worked in improper consort, either explicitly or implicitly for none of the carriers representing parties to file Cross Complaints [sic]." MTD at 15. The Changs appear to argue that Great American engaged in an improper scheme to prevent others from suing Michael Chang. Once again, they offer no evidence in support of this conclusory assertion. Even if they did, the Court would not be inclined to consider it on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss.

1 and 1983, during the Great American policy period. Id. at 11.
2 Such factual findings are inappropriate on a motion to dismiss.
3 Even if this were a motion for summary judgment, the Changs have 4 offered no evidence in support of their contention. Moreover, the 5 Changs do not address relevant policy language and case law cited 6 in the FAC which tend to suggest that the time of an "occurrence" 7 triggering coverage is not the time when the act causing damage was 8 committed, but rather the time when the complaining party suffered 9 resulting injury. See FAC ¶ 34 ("This policy applies to 10 occurrences taking place anywhere during the policy period"); 11 Montrose Chem. Corp. v. Admiral Ins. Co., 10 Cal. 4th 645, 670, 913 12 P.2d 878 (1995) ("[T]he triggering of liability coverage under a 13 CGL policy is established at the time the complaining third party 14 was actually damaged.").

15 The Changs also move to dismiss Great American's claim for 16 breach of the Cooperation Clause on the ground that they "fully 17 cooperated with [Great American]." MTD at 14. Once again, the 18 Changs appear to misconstrue the purpose of a Rule 12(b)(6) motion 19 to dismiss. At this stage of the litigation, the Court cannot make 20 a factual determination about whether or not the Changs cooperated 21 with Great American. It can only determine whether the facts 22 alleged in the FAC give rise to a cognizable and plausible claim 23 for a breach of contract. The Court concludes that they do. The 24 Changs correctly state that the Court is not bound to accept as 25 true allegations that amount to nothing more than legal 26 conclusions. Id. However, they never follow through and explain 27 what aspects of the FAC are lacking. Contrary to the Changs' 28 argument, the FAC is far from conclusory. It contains detailed 1 factual allegations concerning the Changs' alleged scheme to 2 manufacture a defense obligation under the Great American Policy.

3 See, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 50-82. In fact, Great American goes so far as to 4 allege the specific contents of various emails between the Changs, 5 their counsel, and various other attorneys describing plans to 6 manufacture a defense obligation.

7 Finally, the Changs argue that the FAC does not state a 8 plausible claim because they "cannot determine which of the two 9 Plaintiffs is suing which of the two Defendants or various possible 10 combinations thereof, regarding the multiple contracts or 11 Stipulations to Policy Language alleged in Plaintiffs' herein First 12 Amended Complaint [sic]." MTD at 8. This argument might have some 13 merit if the FAC were vague about which plaintiff is suing which 14 defendant under which insurance contract. But it is not. The FAC 15 clearly states that both Great American Insurance Company and Great 16 American Insurance Company of New York seek declaratory relief and 17 other remedies with respect to both Michael Chang and Roxanne Chang 18 under both insurance policies at issue. See, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 13, 15, 19 20, 90, 96.⁴

20 21 V. CONCLUSION

22 In sum, the Changs have failed to articulate a coherent reason 23 for dismissing Great American's FAC. Accordingly, the Changs' 24 Motion to Dismiss is DENIED and the FAC remains undisturbed. The 25 case management conference set for September 21, 2012 at 10:00 a.m.

26 _____
27 ⁴ In light of the borderline frivolous arguments advanced in their 28 brief, the Court feels compelled to remind the Changs' counsel of their Rule 11 obligations. Nonetheless, nothing in this Order should be construed as an invitation for Great American to file a motion for Rule 11 sanctions.

1 in Courtroom 1, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, 2 shall proceed as scheduled. The parties are to file one joint case 3 management statement at least seven (7) days prior.
